Month-in-Brief

LinkedIn generated 268,055 impressions in October, down from September's 595,395, when two outsized posts drove most of the month. Against August, a more typical month, all three metrics are up: impressions +32% (from 203,420), engagement rate 2.02% (from 1.87%) and followers +232 (from +116). Sponsored delivery accounted for 65% of page impressions (175,372).

The top three posts made up 86% of post impressions: the Ireland/Euro Area growth video (96,215), the G20 GDP downgrades post led by Argentina (36,652) and the Spanish-language LatAm elections post (15,961). Spanish LatAm content reached the top three for a second month. The US 10-Year Outlook post had the month's highest engagement rate at 15.2%, with 264 clicks.

X: 277 auto-published posts and 73,463 impressions, down 13%. Engagement rate rose to 0.58% from 0.51%, but replies made up 290 of 429 engagements, in line with our own thread replies. Net followers fell by 2 (11 new, 13 unfollows). Weekend impressions were near zero. We will reevaluate the auto-posting strategy to find a better balance between automatic and manual posts.
